Special event in our “socials” on Wednesday: EDI in STEM!

Eden Hennessey (she/her) is a Social Psychologist who researches and mobilizes knowledge related to diversity promotion and discrimination reduction. Dr. Hennessey advocates for equity and inclusion on university campuses and combines arts with data to impact world-wide audiences. She is deeply committed to her work as the Manager of the Centre for Student Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (CSEDI) at Wilfrid Laurier University and as the Research and Programs Director of the Laurier Centre for Women in Science (WinS).

Inclusive Science: Data-Based Discussions on Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion in Canada

What does the data say about inclusive science? In this interactive session, attendees will learn about research on inclusive scientific practices in the Canadian context, highlighting evidence-based actions to increase equity and inclusion in scientific fields. Attendees are invited to ask questions and engage with scholarship in an informal discussion with the goal of imparting effective and relevant strategies that can be enacted in classrooms, labs, and industry.

WNPPC2022 Reception, today Tuesday

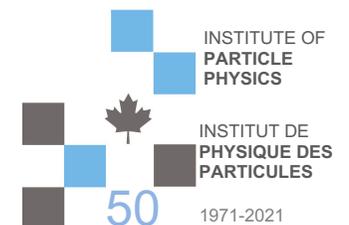

- Mingle, mingle, mingle
- Scavenger hunt in the auditorium:
upgrade your UberEats voucher to 45$!

WNPPC2022 Close out & student prizes, Friday

- Remarks from the judging team
- Student presentation competition: awards across several categories!
- Cash $$$ prizes supported by our sponsors!

An aerial photograph of a coastal town, likely Victoria, British Columbia. The town is built on a peninsula, surrounded by dense green forests. In the foreground, there are numerous floating wooden rafts in the water. The background features a large blue body of water and a range of mountains under a clear blue sky with a few clouds.

Enjoy the conference!
