

(New) Models of Baryogenesis and How to Find Them

Saturday, 17 February 2024 21:00 (30 minutes)

Baryon asymmetry of our universe is one of the most important phenomena that drives new physics models. I will summarize the landscape of the BSM physics required to explain this asymmetry and I will discuss the wide variety of experimental observations required to test these models.

Your Email

SeydaIpek@cunet.carleton.ca

Supervisor

Supervisor Email

Affiliation

Carleton

Your current academic level,

Professor/researcher

Primary author: IPEK, Seyda (Carleton University)

Presenter: IPEK, Seyda (Carleton University)

Session Classification: Evening 4 - Feb. 17, 2024