TRIUMF Code of Conduct explains how TRIUMF values should be woven into our daily interactions and actions.

TRIUMF is a world-class research institution. As such, we hold ourselves and our community to the highest standard of conduct in scientific, academic, and professional activities. Behaviour or conduct that does not meet these standards interferes with our commitment to foster a productive and healthy environment that supports the organizational vision, mission, and values.

In accordance with our Core Values, TRIUMF is committed to providing a safe and inclusive environment that fosters the exchange of ideas, encourages open and respectful dialogue, and is free of harassment and discrimination. The Code of Conduct establishes the standards of behaviour expected of all members of the TRIUMF community, including employees, students, visitors, contractors, and anyone else accessing our facilities onsite or online.

The Code of Conduct facilitates our mission and seeks to make TRIUMF a welcoming and inclusive place for everyone. We require the TRIUMF community to conduct itself in a respectful and open-minded manner, and to uphold high standards of professional and academic conduct. These include but are not limited to:

- Using welcoming, supportive, and inclusive language, considering the ways your words may impact others, and being mindful of tone and expression.
- Holding paramount the safety, health, and welfare of the public, including protection of the environment and the promotion of health and safety in the workplace.
- Ensuring every member of a group has the opportunity to participate, both within the facility and in social settings when appropriate.
- Encouraging engagement by all members of the community.
- Holding oneself accountable for one's actions.
- Making yourself aware of pronouns and not deliberately misgendering others.
- Remaining considerate of dietary restrictions, familial obligations, religious observations, and other cultural practices.

If you experience or witness something inappropriate happening, a gentle reminder about the Code of Conduct is a first response. If you believe a situation requires further intervention, contact your supervisor, TRIUMF contact, or your Human Resources business partner (https://www.triumf.ca/node/41103/er_support). Misconduct includes such activities as contraventions of law or regulation, unsafe work practices, unethical behaviour, bullying, harassment, discrimination, and other activities that violate the Code of Conduct.

For student and post-doctoral researchers, you may also contact the TRIUMF Ombudsperson (ombudsperson@triumf.ca). (Note that, pro tem, TRIUMF's Ombudsperson has temporarily been made available to all staff.) If conduct matters arise at a TRIUMF meeting or conference, please contact the organizer. All concerns will be taken seriously and treated in confidence and in a timely manner.

Early Career Scientist Mentorship Program at TRIUMF

Pilot Early Career Scientist Mentorship Program timeline

Goals and Overview

Effective mentorship has been linked to enhanced student productivity, self-efficacy, and career satisfaction. It has also been shown to give rise to a mentee’s resilience and desire to work through challenges, contributing to the difference between success and failure in their career. Effective mentoring is also key to advancing the principles of diversity, equity, equality, and inclusion in any organization as it creates and fosters an environment where early career scientists can flourish and succeed. It also makes them feel valued, strengthens relationships amongst team members, and boosts talent retention within an organization.

Physical Sciences Division Faculty Mentoring Program

Updated November 10, 2023

Mentoring programs have been implemented at most major universities in North America to support the academic, career, and personal development of tenure-track faculty. This document outlines a proposed mentoring program for BAEs in the TRIUMF Physical Sciences Division (PSD).¹ The program focuses initially on BAEs in categories A and B, with emphasis on BAEs prior to tenure (continuing appointment). Overviews of the mentoring programs at some TRIUMF member universities (upon which this document is based) can be found in Refs. [1], [2], [3].

Engineering Mentoring Program
Document-175202	Release No. 2	Release Date.: 2023-06-12

1 Goals and Overview

Engineering, as a self-regulated profession, has long relied on its own experienced, licensed practitioners to guide, govern, and evaluate incumbents in the interest of the public good. On a provincial level, this has mainly focused on the regulation of engineering practice through application of the various provincial Acts, Bylaws, and Codes of Ethics. To gain licensure and further their engineering career, engineers-in-training (EIT's) rely on the guidance and direction of licensed engineers and supervisors.

The purpose of this program is to establish an internal, volunteer-based engineer mentoring program at TRIUMF to provide guidance to engineers seeking growth and development. This program will remain wholly independent from any governing body and will not necessarily provide engineering references for an EIT's licensing application. The intention of the program is to benefit the mentee, mentor, and TRIUMF as an organization in a variety of ways, including:

Diversity Mentorship at TRIUMF

TRIUMF wants to foster a vibrant diverse company culture. Research shows that representation of equity-seeking groups at management level increases significantly with a diversity mentorship programs and that diverse talent need formal EDI mentoring programs as people may not feel comfortable to reach out.

The goal of the Diversity Mentorship Program for TRIUMF Staff is to support the development of equity-seeking employees throughout our organization. Your knowledge in your field of work and personal experience working at TRIUMF are important, and they make you a valuable resource for mentees; as a mentor, you will help your mentee develop in a variety of areas.

As a community, we benefit from increased engagement, lower turnover, talent pipeline, better EDI, attraction/retainment of talent, & nurtured employees.

The sense of belonging & included is critical to success, a process of continual improvement, and will be captured in EDI Assessments.
